MARSHAL JOFFRE, HERO OF MARNE, CLAIMED BY DEATH

Announcement Made by Captain Saint Sernin of Headquarters Staff

FAMILY AT HIS BEDSIDE

Physicians Say Marshal Died Without Regaining Consciousness

By Frederic K. Abbott
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Jan. 3.—Marshal Joseph Jacques Césaire Joffre, hero of the Marne and commander-in-chief of the French Army during the first two years of the war, died at the clinic of St. Jean De Dieu at 8.23 a. m., 3.23 a. m. Eastern Standard Time today.

Captain Saint Sernin of the Marshal's headquarters staff made the announcement to the assembled journalists in the vestibule of the clinic.

At the warrior's bedside in his final moments were Madame Joffre and the immediate family, as well as the officers of the Marshal's staff and four doctors, in addition to Holy Brother Ferdinand.

In leaving the death chamber shortly after, Dr. Leriche, Joffre's chief physician, declared that the Marshal passed away without regaining consciousness.

"When the amputation was performed on December 19, the Marshal was completely lucid, although in great agony," Dr. Leriche said. He fell into a coma on the 26th of December at 8 p. m.

"He regained consciousness for five and ten minute periods subsequently. He died peacefully, slowly, completely unconscious. There was no physical reaction, no movement."

The body will be embalmed this afternoon and taken to the Chapel of the Ecole Militaire, where it will lie in state.

The last absolution was administered at 8.00 a. m. by Pere Bellesoeur, the Army chaplain.

The end came slowly and after physicians had given up hope for recovery. The staunch heart of the gallant old soldier, who underwent an operation for arteritis two weeks ago today which necessitated amputation of his leg above the knee, enabled him to put up a protracted battle for life.

"Papa" Joffre, as he was affectionately known throughout the world, was 78 years old, and would have reached his 79th birthday in another ten days.

His fatal illness followed a gradual weakness of his once robust constitution, resulting in repeated reports that he was ill. It was not until gangrene set in and virtually all hope of his recovery was past that Madame Joffre permitted physicians to let the world know that another of the great heroes of the World War was passing into eternity.

Two weeks ago Marshal Joffre was taken from his home at Louveciennes suffering from inflammation of the arteries in his legs. Gangrene developed, and the five attending physicians decided that the only hope lay in amputation of the affected leg. But this proved a forlorn hope at best.

A younger man might have survived the old war hero's illness. But the gangrene persisted despite the amputation and his extreme weakness made a second operation impossible. Helpless before the inexorable advance of death, the physicians could do naught but attempt to ease the pain of the war-battered soldier. They took upon themselves the duties of nurses, working in long shifts at his bedside in the hope of alleviating his agony.

The health officer's report for the month of December showed the following cases of communicable diseases in Bristol:

Whooping cough, 10; scarlet fever, 2; measles, 1; diphtheria, 1; tuberculosis, 1; pneumonia, 1; mumps, 1.

There were 173 nuisances investigated during the year.

TULLYTOWN A. C. DROPS ANOTHER CLOSE GAME

Trenton Cage Team Wins Contest by Score of 26 to 23

BRISTOL VIOLETS WIN

By T. M. Juno

TULLYTOWN, Jan. 3.—The Tullytown A. C. dropped another close game here last night. The winners were the Franks A. A. of Trenton with the score being 26-23. In the first game of the evening the Tullytown Juniors were no match for the Bristol Violets, who walked away with a 22-10 victory.

The Junior-Violets affair was a one-sided game from the second half on. In the first half the Tullytowners held the Bristol boys to an 8-6 score but soon after the fifteen minutes' rest the Violets began to drop in doubleheader after doubleheader and soon had the game on ice.

"Socks" and "Freddie" Seneca scored eighteen points for the winners while Borna scored the remaining four. For losers J. Updike and Appleton counted the entire points. On the defense, Bracco and Swangler stood out.

The Trenton Franks A. A. showed a well balanced offense and defense with plenty of team work to defeat the home team. The game was one of the typical see-saw affairs which was not decided until the last two minutes of play.

Field goals by Pinto and Bascarell clinched the game for Trenton in the last two minutes of play. During the waning minute of play the resident team had five easy shots at the basket and missed. The visiting clan then took the ball and commenced to "freeze" it until the game ended.

"Petie" Russo and "Eddie" Adams were high scorers of the game.

RADIO CORPORATION PRESIDENT BELIEVES AMERICAN INDUSTRY WILL INAUGURATE NEW FORWARD MARCH DURING THE PRESENT YEAR

"We Have Been Through the Valley of Depression," Says David Sarnoff—"Prosperity Faces A New Turning Point in 1931"

By W. S. Cousins
(Financial Editor, I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Under the stimulus of new developments from the laboratory, new services to the public and new industries created by initiative and necessity, American industry will inaugurate a new forward march in 1931, in the opinion of David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America.

"We have been through the valley of depression," said Mr. Sarnoff, "and prosperity faces a new turning point in 1931. This country," he said, "has emerged from each industrial crisis one step ahead and always with higher standards of living, higher wages, and a new industrial prosperity."

The fact of greatest promise to renewed prosperity, said Mr. Sarnoff, "is that for the past eighteen months, old mother necessity, with sleeves rolled up, has been busy in the leading laboratories of the nation. We have been going through an industrial phase where production and consumption, the forces of supply and demand, have constantly sought to out-strip each other; we are coming to see that true prosperity lies in the balancing of these forces, but that does not mean the world can, or will, restrict its needs. On the contrary, not by slowing up industry, but by speeding up research, shall we solve our problems."

Necessity is energizing our inventive and industrial genius. Today research has been given the signal of full speed ahead, the laboratories of the nation are hot with development, and the tracks are being laid for new industries and new services."

"Sufficient progress has not yet been made towards practical television to set a date or a time for its introduction upon a nationwide service basis. Nevertheless, progress is continuous. Every contribution to the art now being made in a laboratory is another brick in a new industrial structure. Another indication of a new industrial development, a further approach to creation of a new industry which will need to employ more men, more money and more material. In the meantime, there are many services involving sound rather than sight in the field of electrical entertainment which are yet to be developed."

"In the field of modern screen entertainment, the key to greater progress is better pictures. Recreation and entertainment are vital forces in the everyday life of millions of people. The public at any time will beat a new path to the door of the best play or best book or best film that meet these essential requirements. There again the strongest urge for progress has come from the fact that during a period of depression the public shops (Continued on Page 2)

Lewis to Be Highway Chief, Says Pinchot

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 3.—(INS)—Samuel S. Lewis, of York, former auditor general and state treasurer, will hold the post of Secretary of Highways, one of the most important of the incoming administration, Governor-elect Gifford Pinchot revealed today.

Pinchot made known, in an announcement from his offices here, that Lewis had been invited to his Milford home where the department of highways affairs were discussed and he accepted the post. He expressed great pleasure over Lewis's acceptance.

The State Highway Department and the way it was conducted under Governor John S. Fisher was long a disturbing factor to Lewis when he held the post of State Treasurer. He clashed several times with the heads of the highway departments.

Under Pinchot's administration the Secretary of Highways possibly will spend more money than any other department official and the post is looked upon as one of the most important of any place in the gubernatorial cabinet. Besides the construction and maintenance of the present roads of the state the department will be called upon to construct 20,000 miles of township roads in redemption of Pinchot's campaign promise to "take the farmer out of the mud."

Pinchot's announcement follows: "With great pleasure I make the announcement that I have just invited former Auditor General and State Treasurer Samuel S. Lewis to come to Milford and have asked him to accept the post of Secretary of Highways in the Pinchot administration."

"There is no man in Pennsylvania outside of the highways department with a more extensive knowledge of highway matters than General Lewis. We discussed at length the highway policy to be adopted during the next four years and found ourselves in complete agreement. We united in our estimate of the peculiarly difficult and vitally important task ahead of the highway department in taking over 20,000 miles of township roads, and we agreed on the necessity for humanizing the department and maintaining its morale at the highest possible point in view of that great task."

"I am peculiarly gratified by the acceptance of this post by General Lewis. I look forward to the happiest results from our co-operation."

SUPERVISORS APPEAL FROM AUDITORS' REPORT

Bedminster Group Says Auditors Disregarded Debt of Former Treasurer

HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

Alleging the auditors of Bedminster township erred in failing to take an item of $287.10 into consideration, the road supervisors of the township have taken an appeal in the Court of Common Pleas, at Doylestown.

Members of the board of auditors include J. Franklin Fretz, I. Erwin Yothers and Stanley R. McKnight. The board of supervisors is composed of Abraham Gehman, Mahlon Rice and Leidy Strouse.

The auditors erred, it is claimed, in including an item of debt in the account of Mahlon M. Rice, treasurer, as follows: "To amount received from error in 1929 receipts, $10.18."

The appellants further claim the auditors erred in failing to take into consideration the fact that Jacob Binsberger, a previous treasurer of the board of supervisors, had on deposit in the Perkasio Trust Company, in his name as treasurer of Bedminster township, the sum of $287.10, which money belonged to Bedminster township.

"That although their attention was called to this fact and they had knowledge of it," paragraph two of the appeal states, "they disregarded the same in their audit for 1930 and only noted an error to the extent of $10.18."

The general appeal is from the approval of the auditors of the expenditures of $22,957.13, for road improvement.

At a special meeting of the board of supervisors of Bedminster township on December 12 at L. H. Strouse's home, it was resolved by motion of Mahlon Rice and seconded by Abraham Gehman that the appeal be taken and Webster S. Achey, Doylestown, solicitor for the township, was authorized to take the necessary legal steps.

Elmer Harvison Opens New Delicatessen Store

A modern and attractive delicatessen store has been opened at 1510 Farragut avenue by Elmer Harvison.

Mr. Harvison is very well known in Bristol and has a large number of friends who wish him success in his new venture.

Previous to entering the delicatessen business Mr. Harvison was employed for a number of years with the Trenton, Bristol & Philadelphia Street Railway Company.

The Harvison store is very attractive inside and is sure to fill a long felt want in the Sixth Ward and the town in general.

"Our policy," to serve the best quality products possible to obtain and sell at the lowest prices," is the way Mr. Harvison sums up his idea of business.

FLAMES DESTROY BARN AT OAKLIHURST

Structures, Contents, Worth $15,000, A Total Loss

ORIGIN IS A MYSTERY

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Jan. 3.—Two barns and a corn crib, along with their contents, were destroyed at Oaklihurst, the estate of C. D. Oakley, here, yesterday afternoon. The loss is estimated by Mr. Oakley at about $15,000. It is partly covered by insurance.

The blaze was discovered at about 2.15 yesterday afternoon by Doris, five-year-old granddaughter of Mr. Oakley. The child glanced from the window of her home and saw the flames leaping from the barn. She notified her grandmother, Mr. Oakley and some men had left the barn less than a half hour before and gone to deliver wood in the vicinity. Word was sent to him at once.

The flames spread rapidly and the main barn structure along with a smaller barn were soon a mass of flames.

Firemen were called from South Langhorne, Langhorne, Hulmeville, Newportville and Doylestown.

The horses and livestock were not in the barns at the time, but there was some farm machinery which was destroyed. There were 15 tons of hay and 15 tons of straw consumed by the flames.

Doylestown firemen raced 20 miles to the scene of the blaze while other fire companies within five and six miles of the fire were not called.

The origin of the fire has not been determined.

Coming Events

January 5—Card party conducted by Ladies' Auxiliary in No. 1 Fire Company station, at 8.15 p. m.

January 6—Card party given by Catholic Daughters of America in K. of C. Home, Radcliffe street.

LICENSE BUREAU SHATTERS RECORDS DURING PAST YEAR

Grand Total of 1444 Permits Were Issued Compared With 1253 in 1929

AN INCREASE OF 191

Clergymen and Justices at County Seat Reap Nice Little Harvest

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 3.—Bucks county's marriage license bureau shattered all previous marks in 1930 when a grand total of 1444 licenses were issued during the twelve months of the year, compared to 1253 in 1929, which was a record-year.

Although no figures are available at the present time, clergymen and Justices of the Peace declare that more people were married in Doylestown in 1930 than in any previous year. Ministers reaped a nice little harvest on the side in marriage fees and the same is true of the Justice.

"We are going to start out the new year of 1931 with a goal of 2,000 marriage licenses in view, Jacob Shelly, Deputy Clerk of Orphans Court said yesterday.

The marriage license bureau here has established a reputation for service. Both the Clerk of Orphans' Court, Calvin Tomlinson, of Newtown, and Deputy Clerk Shelly are available at all hours of the day and night and will issue a license after office hours to anyone bearing the proper credentials.

In fact a great number of the licenses issued in 1930 were granted after office hours in the home of either the Clerk or his deputy.

It is estimated that over 60 per cent of the marriages granted in 1930 were to people living outside of Bucks county, with Trenton and Philadelphia furnishing the most applicants.

In only two months in 1930 did the number of licenses granted fall behind 1929 and that was in May and October.

The licenses granted by months were as follows: January, 84; February, 81; March, 101; April, 111; May, 108; June, 187; July, 118; August, 124; September, 151; October, 126; November, 133; December, 120.

Damiano Greco Taken Ill Suddenly; Dies in Hospital

Bristol lost one of its well-known Italian citizens yesterday with the passing of Damiano Greco, husband of Anna Greco.

Mr. Greco, who resided at 207 Franklin street, had made Bristol borough his home for the past 39 years, during which time he was employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad. For 29 years he was one of the assistant foremen of workers on the P. R. R. roadway in this section.

The late Mr. Greco was found lying along the tracks of the railroad yesterday morning, ill. He was taken to the Harriman Hospital at which institution he died shortly after noon-time.

The deceased is survived by his wife; one sister, who lives in Philadelphia; and four children, Mrs. Joseph DeLuca, Daniel, Dominick and Antoinette Greco, all of Bristol.

Relatives and friends have been invited to the funeral from the Greco home Monday at nine a. m. Sojourn high mass will be said at St. Ann's Church at 10 o'clock, with burial in Bristol Cemetery.

Dr. and Mrs. Paul W. Bemis, of Everett, Mass., spent the holidays with relatives and friends at 549 Otter street.

STATE NEWS OF GENERAL INTEREST

HARRISBURG, Jan. 3.—(INS)—There will be several veterans of the State Senate missing when the 129th session of the Pennsylvania legislature gets under way in its organization session here January 6th, a seating chart of the upper chamber shows.

From the front row of the chamber will be gone Senator Max G. Leslie, Allegheny, who was replaced by Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr. Armstrong will have a seat well back in the chamber.

Another veteran of years who will not be present is Senator Horace W. Schantz, of Allentown, succeeded by Henry L. Snyder, of Emaus, a Democrat. Senator Albert Davis, of Lackawanna, was not a candidate this year; his successor, John W. Howell, of Scranton, will also have a desk in the rear of the chamber.

The "Vare seat" will be held down by Joseph C. Trainer, of Philadelphia, who succeeds the late Senator L. E. McCrossin. Senator W. D. Pethic, of Honesdale, will be present, elevated from the house in place of Senator Harvey Huffman, veteran Democrat from Stroudsburg. Huffman's Jefferson sonian associate, Senator Charles W. Sones, Democrat, of Lycoming, was replaced by Fred W. Sprout, of Muncy, a Republican, when Sones retired from the campaign because of ill health.

Other newcomers to the upper chamber will be C. H. Clippinger, former district attorney of Franklin county

WORTHY OF PRAISE

In figures made public at the end of 1930 the South Langhorne station, Pennsylvania Highway Patrol, showed that the officers had been particularly active and that they had had a busy year. Not only did the officers of this station patrol thousands of miles of highways but they investigated hundreds of accidents and gave much information of value to motorists.

These "riders of the iron mule," located in this area, are an intelligent, efficient and business-like group. They go about their work with agility and dispatch. They treat the motorist with courtesy, yet are firm in the enforcement of the motor laws. They play no favorites yet every driver of a motor vehicle gets a square deal.

Sergeant Miner and his detail are to be congratulated upon the record which they have made during 1930.

WANTED: MOTHERS!

Napoleon, when asked what France most needed, answered bluntly, "Mothers." It was a wise answer. America above all else needs mothers. By which is meant not merely physical motherhood, but also and chiefly those moral and spiritual graces which make a mother the holiest thing on earth. For nine times out of 10 it is the mother who gives the home the atmosphere of moral and spiritual charm, subtle sometimes, yet all-pervading. Almost without exception the nobler men and women of the world were greatly mothered. They caught the contagion of her character and unconsciously were molded thereby. From Cornelia, mother of the Gracchi, down to the youngest madonna who regards her first born as a jewel more precious than the fabled Kohinoor, the glory and strength of a nation are her mothers.

And has any generation needed more solely the mothering ministry than our own? Spartan mothers seldom flourish when opulence, ease and other creature comforts abound. Unless the mothers of America are spiritually alert the delusions of the day will possess them also and lure them into valuing overmuch the seeming happiness that money and pleasure purchase. The likelihood is that modern motherhood is far too indulgent, too willing to bear heavier burdens that the sons and daughters of the land may be spared much that is unpleasant and so miss the discipline of learning to do without and the sobering results which follow responsibilities. If the children of this generation are selfish beyond others, it is largely due to parental remissness.

America needs mothers—real mothers. The sordid stories of youthful folly, of wild drinking parties and wilder motor rides; of poor, pathetic, forlorn figures paying the piper after the mad dance, and paying in full; the host of foolish flappers and shallow shiks, terribly sophisticated and amazingly base while still in their teens—such signify a lack of mothering, guidance, companionship, culture in the finer, nobler things.

Was that a mythical country where "all the young men were chivalrous and all the maidens chaste?" Or was it a land of matchless motherhood?

for entertainment as it shops for any other commodity it needs."

"The only real danger, I believe, to natural and widespread economic recovery in the United States is the continuance of archaic political and legislative conceptions regarding large scale industry.

There are many great industries in the country today which are handicapped by overcrowding, overproduction and exploitation. There are many unsound factors which create nothing, contribute nothing and add nothing to the essential structure of an industry.

To argue that any condition which results in market disorganization, financial loss, and finally unemployment, is a sound principle of progress merely because it is labeled 'competition' is to fly in the face of economic facts. The right to compete also implies an obligation to serve."

Mr. Sarnoff advanced the point that while the barometer of a business depression is always clear enough, the signs of prosperity are rarely evident in time to be seen by the average man. The depression barometer, he said, includes the changing colors of the balance sheet, receding stock quotations, reduced consumption and sales and a falling off in the employment of workmen in the mechanical and commercial lines. Similarly, he says, the scientist and the technician do not work with the blade of drums. What goes on in the laboratory under their direction does not become news until research is translated into a new invention, a new service, or a new product.

In conclusion Mr. Sarnoff pleads for health competition and the elimination of monopolies in industry, as well as for the wiping away of archaic political and legislative methods. Healthy competition, he said, is essential to progress, but overproduction should be guarded against for the benefit of the consumer as well as the producer.

department of the Sunday School coached by Mrs. Barth; play entitled "The Real Meaning of Christmas," coached by Miss Betty McLees; the characters were Mildred Marshall, Edward Hanson, Betty Underwood, Marguerite Harland, Mildred Knight, Elmer Miller, Alfred Frantz and Alexander Dean. The orchestra played while the collection was taken. To climax the evening the awards were given. They consisted of pins for attendance, books and candy.

Jack Page and his sister, Marguerite, are spending the holidays at home.

A dinner was given by Mrs. Lillian Page in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paynter, newlyweds of Bensalem high fame.

The holiday spirit is made manifest by the display of red and green lights around the Cornwells fire house, No. 1. On one side there is a Christmas tree which is lighted by electric lights.

Miss Caroline Lyons was a recent visitor in Baltimore at the home of a sick friend.

Last week Miss Virginia Mount celebrated her third birthday. Her parents gave her a party to celebrate the event and many of her friends had a fine time at the Mounts' entertainment.

Frank Snyder, of State Road, has been very ill for the past few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Dennis and son, Carlton, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilbert were visitors in Riverside, N. J., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Bird, recently.

Mrs. Norman Corlett, now a resident of Mayfair, but a former resident of Cornwells Heights, has been ill for the past week.

"FOREST LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Nancy Hollenbeck, is the young and beautiful daughter of a poor but socially accepted family. She is warned by her mother against marrying poverty. Nancy, becoming cynical, gives up handsome Matt Tully and begins an affair with Jack Beamer, married to a wealthy woman. Jack plans to divorce his wife and marry Nancy. On a trip to Yellowstone, Nancy meets Roger Decatur, a ranger. The Porters, rich but dull relatives, arrive. Nancy plans to use them as chaperones on a mountain trip to meet Roger. He appears the first night. The Porters are not pleased.

CHAPTER XIV.

SHIVERING in the chill morning before the bright sun had warmed the day, Nancy would slip into her warm riding things, run a comb through her short curly hair, and meet Decatur by the corral, where the mules were already being packed. Camp beds, blankets, foodstuffs. Everything for the High Sierra camps above the meadows had to go in on mule-back. There were no wagon roads, only the narrow, winding trails.

And riding through the meadows starred with flowers, with the soft wind blowing and the world far away, nothing seemed to matter but the sun and the wind and being alone.

Sometimes, with a short, sharp stab of pain, she thought of Louise sitting with Aunt Ellie on the veranda of the Awahnee, rocking.

Well, Lou's turn would come, after she and Jack Beamer were married. The things she'd do for Louise and mama and papa.

Not a word from Beamer since she had left the Valley. Mail was slow up here in the High Sierras, and the days slid by so fast, so lightly, so full of beauty. Soap bubble days, coming and going so swiftly you could hardly keep count. Full of color and beauty and a strange sort of languor. Unreal days. Days in which you weren't yourself at all, but some one else, eating and sleeping and riding and laughing. Exhaling in the feel of the saddle under you, not caring that your clothes smelled of horsehair, that your nose was sunburnt, your hands grubby.

Contentment

Roger Decatur was part of the spell. He seemed to understand her every mood. Words were hardly necessary—they could jog along over the trails for an hour, not bothering to speak, grinning at each other expansively, sometimes breaking into absurd little snatches of song.

Lunches were the big event of the day. With the horses tethered to trees and one of Roger's tiny fires burning brightly in its circle of stones near the river bed, she would unpack the fruit and sandwiches while he watched the sizzling bacon and pulled the coffee pot off the blaze at the very moment it frothed and started to spill its brown foam into the flame. Then, surfeited with food, they would stretch out on the soft green carpet of the grass and smoke and yawn and stare up through the trees to the bland, noontday sky.

Nancy found herself telling him things about home, things she had never told anyone before. About the house, little, weather-beaten and genteelly shabby, perched on a Piedmont hillside, between its more pretentious neighbors. The Freese's rambling stone house, closed nearly all year while the family were in Europe or New York, on one side, the Whaley's Italian palace on the other. About Mama, who was a Peebles, fuming because the Whaleys were getting into society when they weren't anybody at all.

"And of course it is absurd," Nancy finished.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Minster, Jr.'s little daughter has been ill for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Denneker and daughter and a friend were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Mortimer, of Hulmeville Road, on Sunday evening.

Quite a few attended the meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Cornwells Fire Company, No. 1, on Monday evening. Refreshments were served and all had a fine time.

CROYDON

Mrs. Rockford, of Philadelphia, sister of Roy Sattler, of State Road and Fifth avenue, was a Christmas guest of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sattler. In the evening they motored to Philadelphia and visited at the home of their father, J. Sattler.

Mrs. Taylor, of State Road and Fifth avenue, entertained her three grandchildren from Philadelphia, over the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlin Jester, of Pennsylvania avenue, entertained relatives of Mr. Jester from Delaware, on Christmas. Now they are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Bishop and children, of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Harry Kershaw, of Pennsylvania avenue, has returned to her home after spending several days with relatives in Chester.

Mr. and Mrs. James Laughlin entertained many of their friends from Philadelphia and Olney over Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs.

Smith, of State Road and Rosa avenue, spent Christmas day with Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy's son in Tacony.

On New Year's eve, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schuster, of Bristol Pike, entertained friends and relatives who celebrated the coming in of the New Year.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schweiker and son were guests of Mrs. Schweiker's sister in Tacony on Wednesday.

NEWPORTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Linch, of Olney, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Cassidy and family. Mr. Linch acted as Santa Claus.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gerity, of Philadelphia, spent Christmas at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Everett.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Muth entertained Mrs. John Rodgers and daughter, Helen, of Bristol, recently.

Miss Anna Abeser, of Philadelphia, is spending a few days with Miss Margaret Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bilger entertained as dinner guests on Sunday Mrs. Margaret Bilger, Mrs. Mary Rapp and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bilger and family, of Hulmeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Heller and family, of Pocono Summit, spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Heller.

Harry Mellor, of Camden, spent the past week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mellor.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Everett entertained Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scheffler and daughter, Bernice, and son, "Bobby," of Philadelphia, on Sunday.

you're letting on. Bet you marry a rancher, and have about five kids, all boys. You're the kind—wiry even if you aren't husky. Say, some of the rides we've taken would have knocked out most men. You're built for service, even if you have a pretty face!"

She felt his keen, bright eyes sizing her up appraisingly, approvingly, as he might notice the points of a young heifer or horse. Without the slightest consciousness of her as a girl, without any sentimental interest at all.

Unaccountably her cheeks began to burn. Her heart began an angry beating. . . thump . . . thump . . .

She heard herself say in a quivering, unnatural voice: "Oh, isn't that thrilling! I hate to upset all your wonderful detective work, but I never even saw my grandmother, let alone her farm. And if I'm going to marry a rancher—which I am—it isn't the kind you're thinking about. No love in a hovel, thank you! The ranch I'm going to live on about three months in the year is a rich man's hobby. There's electricity and plumbing and a swimming pool and thoroughbred horses and a French car—if you call that the primitive life!"

Nancy put on her prettiest dress, the turquoise organdie she had worn that night with Jack on the river. No one dressed for dinner here in camp, but she didn't care. She was suddenly tired of riding breeches and mannish skirts. She wanted to feel herself again . . . her old self . . . gay and frivolous and beloved . . .

Essie and Gladys sat on their cots and watched her with round, questioning eyes while she powdered her tanned neck and painted her lovely mouth a bold scarlet.

They were already dressed. Essie in a bright blue crepe de chine that took every vestige of color out of her light blue eyes, leaving them a staring milk white. Gladys was lumpy and florid in pink.

If Nancy's going to dress up, maybe we should, too!" Essie plucked at her blue garters and looked nervously at her sister.

No Incentive

"Why should we?" What is there to dress up for in this dump?" Gladys demanded.

"Oh, just for fun!" Nancy laughed. But the Porter sisters were not responsive. Neither were the elder Porters when they all marched solemnly into the dining room.

Essie and Gladys picked at their food. Mrs. Porter said at intervals, "Just think, we could have stayed at the Awahnee. I wouldn't say anything, only I had my mouth all set for a Saturday night dinner. Mrs. Watson described the sweet-breeds they had, in cases. And avocado cocktail."

"But roast beef is much better for us!" Nancy murmured, passing the baked potatoes.

Mrs. Porter said nothing. From his place at the other end of the long room, Roger Decatur watched the Porters and their guest with uneasy absorption. To the eager questions of the nice school teachers at his table he gave the most unintelligent answers. No, he wasn't a guide . . . no, he had government business here . . . really couldn't recommend a nice trip . . . sorry, but he couldn't let anyone accompany him on his inspections to the upper camps . . . that young lady with brown eyes? Oh! well, that was different . . . no, he didn't know much about the rock formation . . .

He couldn't wait to join Nancy for their regular evening walk, but after he was with her there was nothing to say. Their precious comradeship was vanished.

LIVE PIGEON SHOOT
SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

On New Year's Day, a live pigeon shoot was held by the members of the Bristol Fish & Game Association at Frank Richardson's farm at Frosty Hollow.

The high scores in the meet were obtained by E. Dyer and J. Uhlman, who shot all their pigeons. They were closely followed by D. English and W. Warner, who missed one bird each.

The meet was very successful and very few birds got away. Many shooters stood outside of the grounds and got most of the stray birds. One fellow was lucky to get nine birds. The scores were as follows:

E. Dyer, 10; J. Uhlman, 10; D. English, 9; W. Warner, 9; F. Herman, Sr., 8; H. Appleton, 8; E. Scheffey, 8; E. Spangler, 8; W. Appleton, 7; G. Brundon, 7; J. Crawford, 7; H. North, 6; F. Herman, Sr., 5; F. Herman, Sr., 5; J. Johnson, 5; C. Rathke, 5; H. Smith, 5.

GEORGE TRAINED FOR MAT
TITLE IN LUMBER CAMPS

Don George, former amateur American wrestling champion, who won the professional title by pinning Gus Sonnenberg, the Dartmouth football star, tells of his struggle for recognition in his brief but striking campaign for the championship.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 3.—C-H-A-M-P-I-O-N!

I don't know that I fully realize just what it all means yet, but still I feel that today I have achieved my ambition, and as conqueror of Gus Sonnenberg I am convinced that I can carry on the best traditions of wrestling until such time as I am forced to take my place in the sport.

While I feel the exultation of victory, I cannot but express my heartfelt regard for Sonnenberg—a worthy opponent and a man who battled to the last ditch to retain the laurels that have been his for 23 months, since he defeated Ed "Strangler" Lewis in Boston.

This autobiography business is a bit new to me, but for the sake of those fans who like to follow the historical aspects of the game I will narrate it.

I was born June 3, 1905, at North Java, in upstate New York, and received my early schooling in the grammar schools of that city. Later my parents moved to Buffalo, where I had my prep training. Armed with a high school diploma and a strong physique, I set out to conquer the world as most boys do, or feel the urge to at some time in their teens.

In 1923, when knocking around the country taking odd jobs here and there working in wheat fields, threshing, and later in lumber camps as a logger, I became interested in wrestling. In spare time with other young fellows I often spent hours developing the fundamental grips of the game such as toe holds, hammer locks, half and full Nelsons.

In the autumn of 1924 I decided that I would be handicapped without further education, so with such money as I was able to scrape together I enrolled as a freshman at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Here I was able to concentrate my physical education work into studios application of wrestling technique and in my initial year at college I became Michigan's amateur light heavyweight champion.

As a sophomore I annexed the varsity title and subsequently the national collegiate heavyweight crown and national amateur recognition.

In the fall of 1926 I enrolled at Notre Dame, the home of the "Fighting Irish," but finances forced me to give up work there after three weeks, so I transferred to St. Bonaventure, where I got a crack at football, even though the school was small. When I was not waiting on table at boarding houses I was coaching the mat team, which I captained on a barnstorming tour that pitted us against grapplers in many eastern colleges.

After one term at St. Bonaventure I went back to Michigan, where I studied mechanical engineering and centered upon grappling to win the varsity, the "big ten" and national collegiate and amateur titles as a heavyweight.

This gave me the opportunity to represent the United States in the Olympic games at Amsterdam. I won three bouts before tangling with Richtoff, the Swedish entry, who won what my friends insisted was a "European decision" over me.

Eliminated from the games, I decided to hobo about the continent which I did for four months, seeing plenty, but often postponing meals indefinitely, due to finances. I went broke in Basle, Switzerland, where it took all the oratorical powers that I possessed to persuade the American consul to advance me $5 to reach Geneva. There I rejoined the Yankee team, which had more funds available than myself.

Leo Is Himself Again!

By HARDIN BURNLEY

THROUGH winning the Portland and San Francisco Opens soon after the start of the annual golf tour, Leo Diegel gave striking evidence that he was "on" his game again after a lapse which cost him the American professional championship early last Fall and his Canadian title as well. For a stretch of several months, Diegel was so much "off" in his play that he occasionally picked up his ball before a match was half over.

"I can't go a round of late without a slump that comes, occasionally, to all links wizards who play competitive golf a great deal.

But at Portland and, more recently, at Frisco, "the touch of the master" returned, his 69 that beat Gene Sarazen's 72 in the Oregon Open play-off revealing King Leo at his technical best. Thus far Diegel looms as winningly in the current Winter brigade as Horton Smith did in the past two tours. And he's pointing for the $25,000 Agua Caliente Golf Derby, the $10,000 first prize in which is the richest in all golf. Since Leo is now at the Agua Caliente Club, a Diegel victory would be very popular with his tournament.

It was at Five Farms, a year and a half ago in the Fall of 1928 that Diegel won the U. S. Pro championship, bringing Walter Hagen's four-year reign to match play king-

IN CASH PRIZES EVERY WEEK

6 DAY LIM' RICK CONTEST

Talk about starting the New Year right! How could you do it any better than by getting a big slice of that $500 prize money? Here's how . . . every day, for the six days of each contest, the Evening Ledger will publish the first four lines of a Limpin' Lim'rick. All you have to do is to supply an amusing, clever and original last line to complete each day's Lim'rick. For example, take this one (the first four lines were given—the last line was supplied by a contestant) . . .

*There once was a butcher named Sam,
Who threw down his knife with a slam,
"I'm through," declared he;
"This is no job for me—
IT TAKES SCIENCE TO RETAIL A LAMB."*

You do not send in each day's Lim'rick separately! Save them until you have ALL SIX . . . then send the six completed Lim'ricks to the address given in the contest coupon in the Evening Ledger. A new 6-day contest begins every Monday!

That's all there is to it! You can have a lot of laughs working out these funny, fascinating Limpin' Lim'ricks . . . they're easy to do . . . and, best of all, there's $500.00 in cash prizes for the cleverest sets of completed Lim'ricks!
